

I am on Indiana's Telephone Privacy program. I love it. I have reduced the number of unwanted telephone calls to ZERO. I would urge the FCC not to require Indiana to implement ANY rules that would reduce the effectiveness of this program. My time with my family is now uninterrupted by obnoxious and rude telemarketers. I like it like that. In my opinion, the FCC should be looking to the Indiana Law as a model instead to trying to find a reason to weaken it.
